We've been hearing from our educator community that it's simply not enough to have occasional conversations about safety and digital civility and that they'd greatly benefit from a structured curriculum and project-based learning as the new school year begins and kids are spending more and more time learning and interacting with one another online, said Laura Higgins, Director of Community Safety and Digital Civility at ROBLOX. The curriculum launching today is designed to provide both educators and students with a self-paced, topic-specific narrative that will help build a generation of resilient digital citizens and ensure kids and teens have positive and safe online experiences.

It is fairly common to see another player being a bit overdramatic, especially since the age range for this game varies so greatly. This meme is just one example of this as someone's avatar laying on the ground claims they are dying, but no one around seems to care.

I've used the ROBLOX curriculum with my students well before distance learning was required and have seen first-hand how they benefit from combining learning and play on their favorite platform. While they learn game design and coding, they also acquire valuable social skills and create long-lasting friendships, said Bianca Rivera, Librarian at Ruth C. Kinney Elementary in New York. Now more than ever, it's important for these kids to feel connected to their peers, and ROBLOX's offerings facilitate that.
